

Addiction: Illness or Crime?

picture by www.socialissuesphotography.co.uk

- Kevin C. Dooley, a heroin and crack cocaine addict for over 20 years, and clean and sober for the last 12 years, poses the big question - is addiction an illness or crime?
- We dare you to listen to what he has to say - based on personal experience as well as his in-depth study of the latest medical and neuroscience thinking on the subject.
- Kevin has already convinced the national British Pharmacists Students Association and speaks to all the country's clinical pharmacists at their national conference this autumn.
- Understanding what Kevin has to say about addiction could transform your practice for the better - leading to more people put back on the road to recovery, fewer victims and all at lower cost to the tax payer.

Kevin C. Dooley is a sought-after specialist speaker on the subject of addiction. He has appeared as a spokesperson on BBC News at Ten and in a recent TV documentary about the death of River Phoenix. Articles about his addiction, prison experience, being handcuffed to attend his son's funeral and being homeless on the streets of Westminster have appeared in The Independent, the Big Issue and other leading publications. Don't miss the insights he is willing to share!

For more go to: www.kevcdooley.org
To book, contact: Ian Glennie on 07734 858121

Powerful solutions for change and growth

ian@glennie.com | 07734 858121 | www.glenniejustice.co.uk

glennie
communications group