

50% of justice interventions aren't working. Here's why!

picture by www.socialissuesphotography.co.uk

Kevin C. Dooley, a prolific offender for 20 years, throws down the gauntlet to the justice sector! In his experience, most justice professionals are working in ignorance of what their service users are really like and need to better understand:

- How the extreme stress and trauma experienced by service users on a daily basis drives their brain chemistry, psychology and emotions. And that this has no relation to the legal model of 'the responsible person' on which the justice sector is based
- How to calm someone down from high stress levels so they are able to trust and accept help
- How to change and divert the instincts that are keeping the service user alive and safe on the streets but are self-defeating in creating their long-term recovery and desistance from crime.

Kevin C. Dooley is a sought-after specialist speaker on the subject of crime and addiction. Clean and sober for the last 12 years he advises clients on how to find freedom.

He has appeared as a spokesperson on BBC News at Ten, in a recent Channel 5 documentary about the death of River Phoenix and in range of national publications from The Independent to The Big Issue. Don't miss the insights he is willing to share!

For more go to: www.kevdooley.org
To book, contact: Ian Glennie on 07734 858121

Powerful solutions for change and growth

ian@glennie.com | 07734 858121 | www.glenniejustice.co.uk

glennie
communications group